FOOD AND MIND.

Change in physical condition necessarily implies change in mental state, and no mental change fails to effect a corresponding change in bodily condition. Body and mind are, indeed, inseparable. Next to injuries resulting in continuous irritation, as when an arm is fractured, the most potent and far reaching, the most continuous of the physical influences affecting the mind, is food. From this influence we cannot escape while life lasts. Hence the profound influence on the mental and moral life of right selection of food and right eating. It is not only the day after a feast or the night following a heavy supper, but always, that the mental condition is influenced by eating. This is not underestimating the importance of mind, which some theoretical speculators say is all, so that we may "eat anything." Common sense, as well as science, indicates the wisdom of right food selection.

A Spanish Fork citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.
William Cox, First Ward, Spanish Fork, Utah, says: "I really do not know what I would do were it not for Doan's Kidney Dille." I would do were it not for Doan's Kidney Pills. For a number of years I had been annoyed by a most persistent atts act of kidney complaint and I alwaysuffered more severely after I retired. I tried remedies of various kinds but found no relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the City Druf Co. They proved of such great benefit that I have never been without a supply in the house since and as the result of an occasional use, my health is excellent, although I use, my health is excellent, although I am over eighty years of age."

Jails, penitentiaries and the gallows are built for those who refuse to live within the law, and want to be a law unto themselves. Walk in the straight and narrow path and at all times be able to read your title clear. There is a law in this state compelling people to have printed wrappers on their butter. Some imagine they are wise and use a rubber stamp, in this case the ink will off-set unto the butter and probably poison it, hence it doesn't fill the law. BUTTER WRAPPER BLUE INK can be handled only with a printing can be handled only with a printing press and is guaranteed not to off-set 24 hours after printing. We, at The Spanish Fork Press Office, have won an enviable reputation with the people in printing butter paper, that's the only reason we get the business.
